The HEART of our Work

Child Health Initiative

Through the Child Health Initiative, home visitors, including nurses and social workers, take a “whole family” or “two-generation” approach to long-term wellness for children.

Home visitors assist each member of a family with reaching goals they set for themselves. For a parent those goals may include more education, better employment, or safe, stable housing — foundational influencers of good health. Goals often include ensuring children are up-to-date on all preventative care, attending school, and forming healthy habits.

In response to the pandemic, families received laptops or tablets to allow them to continue their education and employment and obtain healthcare while staying safe.

The HEART of our Work

Promoting Lifelong Healing

Greater Williamsburg Trauma-Informed Care Network (GW-TICN) began in 2019 to spread awareness of the impact of trauma on individuals and families. GW-TICN is based upon the science of adverse childhood experiences (ACEs), which shows that trauma from childhood can have lifelong physical and mental health consequences. GW-TICN implements trauma-aware practices to heal those who have been exposed to trauma and prevent generational cycles of trauma. This group includes over 40 organizations and makes us close as a community.

Advanced Primary Care

Medical professionals always face risk of exposure to illness from their patients, but the COVID-19 pandemic took this risk to a new level. Despite the risks to themselves, staff at Gloucester Mathews Care Clinic, Lackey Clinic, and Olde Towne Medical & Dental Center continued to see their patients. Numerous innovations, including a significant increase in the provision of telehealth services, were quickly devised and implemented. Through the extraordinary efforts of clinic staff and funding from WHF's Chronic Care Collaborative, patients with chronic diseases such as high blood pressure, diabetes, depression, COPD, and obesity still received needed care.

The HEART of our Work

Access to Medication

Through programs from the Virginia Health Care Foundation and RxPartnership, patients at Gloucester Mathews Care Clinic, Lackey Clinic, and Olde Towne Medical & Dental Center receive prescription medications at no cost.

With the onset of the pandemic, clinics quickly had to pivot from the traditional model of patients coming into clinics to pick up medicine. Instead, prescriptions had to go outside to get to patients! Staff improvised walk-up windows and parking-lot pickups, and used the U.S. mail so patients did not go without their necessary medication. Despite the pandemic, over 16 million dollars in medications were dispensed through these three clinics.

The HEART of our Work

Stronger Agencies Mean a Healthier Community

At WHF, we strive to help nonprofit agencies grow and flourish. It's at the heart of our work.

Catchafire.org strengthens local agencies and the social sector at large by matching professionals who want to donate their time with nonprofits who need their skills. WHF supports membership in this valuable service.
